Tomorrow isn't just another day on the calendar—it's our 77th Independence Day, and we look back upon numerous instances of the indomitable spirit of freedom fighters who paved the way to India's long-awaited liberty. From the First War of Indian Independence of 1857 to the Bardoli Satyagraha of 1928, from the historic Dandi March to the Quit India Movement – each was a crucial step towards India's autonomy. In fact, we alone do not celebrate 15 August as Independence Day, for the same day symbolises the end of colonialism in the Republic of Congo and the emergence of a self-governing nation in Central Africa.

In the past month, MCKV saw a number of memorable events. For the first time ever, it hosted the regional boxing tournament 2023 for the Council for the Indian School Certificate Examinations (CISCE). It also hosted the Frank Anthony Memorial All-India Inter-School Debate 2023. Through these events, MCKV aspires to foster the holistic development of its students, embracing excellence in every aspect of their growth and nurturing their potential to flourish.

In the spirit of creativity, MCKV also launched its students' blog, Penned-up Passions, an immersive platform for students to share their literary talents with the world.

Let us celebrate and cherish India's liberty, and applaud MCKV's initiatives in promoting creativity and sports. Let us hold firm to the hope that the young minds of today will carry forward the torch of unyielding determination, progress, and unity for generations to come. Jai Hind!
